

ASRC Legal Referral Sheet

Free Legal Help

If you need of legal assistance and/or representation and can't afford to pay for a lawyer, you can call the following telephone advice lines:

Refugee Legal

Refugee Legal specialises in free legal advice and representation in relation to protection visas, visa cancellation and general immigration matters at primary and merits review stages.

Advice line: (03) 9413 0100 – available Wednesdays & Fridays from 10am to 2pm

Victoria Legal Aid (VLA)

Victoria Legal Aid's (VLA) Migration Team specialises in free legal advice and representation to people who are seeking merits review of a decision to refuse or cancel a protection visa in the Administrative Review Tribunal (ART), or judicial review in the federal courts. VLA also has specialist criminal, family and civil teams that can provide advice and assistance with other legal issues.

Advice line: 1300 792 387 – available Monday to Friday from 8.00 am to 6 pm

Paid Legal Services

Private lawyers may be able to help you with advice or representation. They will charge fees for their assistance, called legal fees or professional fees. It is very important that you get ethical and informed advice, as bad advice can be very damaging. We recommend you get advice from a firm that has a Law Institute Accredited Immigration Law Specialist employed.

A lawyer needs to follow certain rules when assisting you, including clear communication about costs. To find out information about what to expect from your lawyer, visit <https://www.lsbic.vic.gov.au/consumers/choosing-and-working-your-lawyer>. You are not obliged to continue with services you are not happy with.

Migration lawyers do not need to be migration agents to give migration advice.

You should only accept advice from migration/refugee lawyers or registered migration agents. You can check the registration of lawyers with the Victorian Legal Services Board at <https://lsbc.vic.gov.au/register-of-lawyers> and the Commission and migration agents with the Office of Migration Agents Registration Authority at <https://portal.mara.gov.au/search/theregister-of-migration-agents/>.
